

The Crime of the Century

A title, the author(s), your name, the date, the institution.
That's all that is needed.
You can start setting up the background for the talk...

Sherlock
(Presented by xxxxx)

Many thanks to Dr. Watson for his patience recollecting the event

Sept 12, 2013

London in the 1900's

- Some background information

A yellow sticky note with a close button in the top right corner and a pencil icon in the bottom right corner. The text on the note reads: "You may want to have a slide with some background information".

You may want to have a slide with some background information

Main Result

Give the main results now!!! This is not a detective novel. Tell the audience RIGHT AWAY what was found!

- The Butler did it!
- He had an accomplice

Outline

- The scene
- The characters
- The motives
- The reconstruction
- The clue
- The arrest
- Conclusion

Outline

- The scene
- The characters
- The motives
- The reconstruction
- The clue
- The arrest
- Conclusion

The Scene

Start with as many slides as you need for describing the first section.

Outline

- The scene
- The characters
- The motives
- The reconstruction
- The clue
- The arrest
- Conclusion

Outline

- The scene
- The characters
  - The Butler
  - The Maid
  - The dog
- The motives
- The reconstruction

continue...

- Progress through the material.
- Put information easy to understand first
- Slowly move on to more sophisticated information.
- It's ok to lose all but a few people at the very end.

DO NOT HESITATE TO REPEAT INFORMATION!
This is the same slide as the very first results slide, but with additional information.

Results

- The Butler did it. But he was not alone
- The accomplice was the Maid
- The arm was a butcher knife
- They wanted to steal the gold cross

Conclusion

Again, you repeat the results but put them in perspective. Any possible murder cases where the approach could be useful?

- The Butler and the Maid did it. For love. They used a butcher knife
- They were caught
- Crime does not pay
- New investigative tools created to solve the murder